R

R Series is an organic chair designed to complement the curves of the human body. R stands for its generously radiused contours which are created on the principles of bionics. Developed during the late 90s it's a time-tested task chair, designed with extra support for the long working hours, hence it is still a favourite for many. It's extra-large looks enhances its durability and strength. The High back chair of R family gives full back and shoulder support in all working postures. The seat and back are shaped to body contour by hot-pressed compressed wood which are encased in moulded polyurethane foam of high density for the right combination of softness with firmness. The R family also includes a variety of medium back and low back chairs along with options of Net back, PVC and Jute Back Chairs.

R

R series states an overall strength and looks appealing from any angle. The side, the front and the complete profile, all present a soothing organic look which compliments and blends with the modern office seating. Special attention has been given to the width of the armrests ensuring firm support and added comfort to the User.

R family also include static chairs both with and without armrests, which can be used for visitors and informal seating. Similar continuous running seaters is available for the reception and the waiting areas. Integrated with these running seaters are wooden tops or side tables for keeping reading materials or personal belongings while waiting.
